HOW THE JAPANESE WON THE FIRST GREAT LAND BATTLE OF THE WAR

HOW THE JAPANESE WON ON YALU RIVER.

Russians Were Beaten at Every Point in the First Great Battle of the War.

WUJU, Korea, May 1, via Seoul, May 8 (delayed in transmission).—When the early mists drifted from the Yalu river this morning the Japanese infantry was disclosed in line of battle, on the low, sandy island of Kintello, which is in front of Wuju. The walls and towers of the city on the hill, rising abruptly from the south bank of the river and the nearest of three channels were crowded with Japanese and Korean spectators of the forthcoming attack.

LINE OF SOLDIERS.

Kintello island is hardly anything more than the dry bed of the river. It is a low, sandy plain, only a few feet above the level of the water and, without shrubbery or cover, except on its southern half. The infantry lay with stacked arms across the island, awaiting their work. The soldiers were spread out in their black lines three miles long from a point on the island opposite the village of Chin Lien Cheng on the west to a point opposite the extremity of the Tiger's Head on the east. The division of the Imperial guards occupied the center of the line, another division was on the west, and a third on the east of the line.

The Tiger's Head forms a peninsula projecting into the river almost parallel to the south bank. The Japanese division which executed the flanking movement from up stream yesterday, with almost its full force present, was now on the sandy south of the Tiger's Head.

THROWING SHELLS.

Four field batteries were behind the infantry on its extreme flanks, concealed by the shrubbery.

Two batteries began the action by throwing shells to the Manchurian side of the river for half an hour, while the sun was rising. They sprinkled with shells the embankments where the Russian guns had been firing for the past week, but no response to their fire was forthcoming, and it looked as if the Russians had removed their batteries during the night.

NO SIGNS OF LIFE.

It seemed as if the enemy had withdrawn entirely, as no signs of life could be seen on their banks.

Soon after 7 o'clock the Japanese began to advance. The distance from the Korean to the Manchurian bank of the Yalu is about two miles. The Japanese troops spread out in extended formation as they went forward. When they were 100 yards from the hills on the Manchurian side they threw themselves prone on the ground and began crawling.

In the meantime the Japanese batteries searched the hills with shrapnel. The Russians could be seen at intervals where the road was exposed having in small squads on all the hills. These exposed stretches of the road made fine targets for the Japanese guns. A fierce fire was concentrated on an open space, half the shrapnel thrown bursting over a small area with wonderful precision.

There was a perfect shower of bursts of white smoke at this place and the observers could see the work of an occasional shell as it dug a great hole in the earth and scattered quantities of rock.

RUSSIANS SILENT.

Still the Russians remained silent. There was no answering from them until the first Japanese line was within 100 yards of the river bank. Then sharp volleys burst almost simultaneously from several trenches and the attacking Japanese found themselves under a heavy and continuous fire, at easy range, from covered positions high above them. They lay behind the sand hillocks, replying bravely and hotly to this fire while their own batteries pumped shells over their heads.

OUT IN THE OPEN.

The Japanese officers sat on their horses or walked along their lines. They were in an open position and were exposed to the fire of the Russian batteries. A few stretcher bearers coming back to the field hospital indicated that men were being wounded.

The Russian smokeless powder was excellent. Its use made it impossible for the Japanese to discover the exact positions of the enemy, or to estimate their numbers.

Soon after 8 o'clock the Russian fire was largely silenced by the combined artillery and infantry attack of the Japanese, parties of the enemy's troops could be seen hurrying upward over the mountain roads in retreat.

GAVE CHEERS.

Two regiments of Japanese troops, one directly opposite Wuju, and another near a village on the west, ran to the river, stopping to fire now and then as they progressed, and giving shrill cheers as they hurried forward which echoed clearly over the plain. Their formation was less than that kept by British or American troops and it looked as though their ranks must be great. They waded the river, ran on across the sands and climbed up the steep, rocky hillsides like a swarm of ants, their red and yellow caps gleaming in the sun. One Japanese soldier in one of these regiments, carried something white with him. This was seen and it caused a shout to go up that the Russians had surrendered. But on reaching the top of the first Russian hill, a 100 yards up the hillside this man shook out a Japanese flag and waved it to and fro.

STORMING PARTY.

A storming party on the west side of the advance mounted a hill commanding the Russian retreat. Just as the men were bunched thickly on the crest of this hill two Japanese shells burst among them. They had failed short. When the smoke cleared away a dozen bodies could be seen lying where the shells had exploded and the remainder of the storming party were clambering down the hill in escape this unexpected fire from their guns.

The sound of rifle firing soon passed on over the hills as the Japanese pursued the retreating enemy. One column of weary soldiers, who had been almost two days without rest, was trudging down the river toward Antung, where the Japanese were expected to find them.

JAPS ON THE MOVE

Are Preparing to Give the Enemy Battle.

LONDON, May 9.—Eaton Hayashi, the Japanese Minister here looks for the next engagement of the war to take place at Liao Yang. He said today:

General Korok probably is on the march to that place and General Kuropatkin should give battle there. Indeed, from the signs of his concentration, he may assume the offensive. But for his defeat at the Yalu river this movement might be dangerous. Under the existing conditions, however, Kuropatkin ought to be able to drive back General Kuropatkin. At Liao Yang the Russians have a central position and can strike either to the left or right, an advantage they did not enjoy when New Chwang had to be defeated. In the event of our occupation of New Chwang we shall immediately appoint a civil administrator, as we did at the time of the war with China and open the port to all nations.

"Vice-Admiral Togo, I think, is now likely to dock part of his fleet and give the men a rest from the ceaseless vigilance they have kept up since the beginning of the war. Our land advance and part of the impending engagements must largely depend on the commissariat. This I hardly think is yet able to cope with a forward movement, say on Mukden, Harbin or Vladivostok."

IN THE DARK.

ST. PETERSBURG, May 9, 4:30 p. m.—The Russian authorities are completely in the dark as to what is happening in the territory occupied by the enemy, except such news as comes from newspapers abroad and originating from Japanese sources. The reports of a Japanese landing in Taku Shan and the investment of Port Dain, etc., while not confirmed here officially, are denied. The Novoye Vremya this morning is greatly excited over the action of the Swedish authorities in mining the entrance of the harbor of Silt on the island of Gotland, in the Baltic sea, demanding that the Foreign Office ascertain the cause, seemingly forgetting that Silt was occupied as a base by the British fleet operating against S. Petersburg at the time of the Crimean war.

RUSSIANS ADVANCE.

SEOUL, May 9. (9:30 p. m.)—The Japanese consul at Gensan telegraphs that a train of Russians, number unknown, accompanied by Manchurian mounted bandits crossed the Yalu far above Wuju advanced southeast and occupied Chang Jin, 100 miles west of Seng-jin, May 8.

LOST IN BATTLE.

TOKIO, May 9 (9:30 p. m.)—The official report of the Japanese casualties at the battle of the Yalu May 7 shows that the guards lost one officer and twenty men killed and had seven officers and 122 men wounded.

The second division lost one officer and eighty-four men killed and thirteen officers and 365 men wounded.

The third division had three officers and seventy-six men wounded.

NEW HEADQUARTERS.

ST. PETERSBURG, May 9 (7 p. m.)—It is officially announced that General Kuropatkin's headquarters will remain at Liao Yang. He has no intention, at least for the present, of retiring from his position there.

ALEXIEFF'S HEADQUARTERS.

ST. PETERSBURG, May 9 (9:30 p. m.)—Viceroy Alexieff has telegraphed to the Emperor announcing the transfer of his headquarters to Harbin.

THE STORY OF THE POLICE.

The story of the police by the aid of the police in finding his granddaughter, who he believed to have been taken away by the traitor. The police have been searching for the missing girl since last Friday. This morning Grandpa Armstrong received a letter from Waukesha, Wis., stating that the plans of the son have been changed and that the young lady would not start for Oakland for several weeks.

HE TOOK HIS LIFE.

San Francisco Young Man Suicides in Paris.

PARIS, May 9.—Harold T. Clarke, living in New York and San Francisco, son of the late Jeremiah Clarke of San Francisco, killed himself in a leading hotel here today by bowing off the top of his head with a revolver. He had been touring the continent for several months and had just arrived in Paris from Monte Carlo, where it is understood he lost heavily.

Clarke's mother and sister, who are in this city, are unable to give the slightest clue as to the cause of his suicide.

The deceased was 31 years old. The body will be shipped to the United States.

MAYBELL ARMSTRONG IS SAFE AT HER HOME.

Miss Maybell Armstrong, who was reported to the Oakland police last Friday as missing, has been found. In fact, she was never lost; for she is with her father at Waukesha, a suburb of Milwaukee.

The story of her disappearance was called to the attention of the police by her grandfather, Thomas G. Armstrong, of Twenty-third avenue. Mr. Armstrong's son resides in Waukesha. He is the father of the girl who was supposed to have been missing. Mr. Armstrong Sr. was called to Waukesha on business, and while he was there a letter was received from the girl's father stating that she would arrive here on Friday, and that he

CATHOLIC CHURCH IS DISCUSSED.

Sensation Sprung When Resolution is Offered Attacking the Church of Rome.

LOS ANGELES, May 9.—There was a full attendance when the bugle sounded the call for the Methodist General Conference today to convene at nine o'clock this morning. A general attendance shows that they anticipate the session of today and those to follow will be of great importance.

It is probable that the business session will report to the Conference during the next two or three days its recommendation regarding the proposal to consolidate the various publishing houses of the church into one great central institution. In much as there is an almost equal division of sentiment upon the advisability of this action a lively debate will surely follow the reading of the committee's recommendations. The committee on itinerancy is expected some time during the week to make some sort of report to the conference on the question of restoring the pastoral time limit.

It is scarcely likely that the Episcopal Committee will have ready its recommendation on the retirement of Bishops and the choosing of others before the last day of the week. In the mean time, however, there is a great deal of quiet politics doing its best to influence the candidates of the many annual conferences.

COLORED BISHOP.

If a colored bishop is to be chosen by the present conference, it seems practically settled that that man will be Rev. Dr. J. W. E. Bowen, professor of systematic theology in the Gammon Theological Seminary of Atlanta, Ga. The colored delegates, of whom there are seventy-nine, in addition to three white delegates representing colored conferences, have met in caucus, and by what amounted to a unanimous vote agreed to concentrate their

ASTRONOMER WILL CHASE DAN CUPID AWAY.

No More Love Making Will Be Permitted in Jefferson Park.

Oakland's noted astronomer, Professor Charles D. Burkhalter, who studies the stars through the telescope at the Chabot Observatory, has been appointed a special policeman, and his beat is patrolling the remodelled grounds around the observatory to see that Dan Cupid does not play too many pranks.

For a long time the paths of the Chabot Observatory Park have been most tempting to the feet of lovers. The benches, according to the story told by Special Policeman Professor Charles Burkhalter, are softer here than in other places. The gardens themselves on a moonlight night seem to hold a greater fascination for the fancy of the victims to the tender passion. In fact, Dan Cupid has cut up so many pranks that when Professor Burkhalter looks at the moon through his telescope that orb sometimes is wreathed in smiles at the follies of the mortals it cannot fail but observe and sometimes the face of the celestial body is veiled by a frown. Astronomy and love will not mix. That is the upshot of the whole matter and at the present writing astronomy is way in the lead and Cupid is out of the running. Chabot Observatory grounds will hereafter be reserved for star-gazing only.

Any pair of lovers who will go to the grounds may do all the star-gazing that they wish. That is, in the line of the astronomical. But "spooning" and osculatory practices must be foregone.

The observatory grounds heretofore have been used as a sort of a back parlor by impressionable young men and women, who, for some reason, preferred the public park to their homes. In many cases the love of the couples have been of an absorbing character and they have been oblivious to the outside world. It is such things which led Professor Burkhalter to apply to the Police and Fire Commissioners to be made a policeman.

It is safe to say that there is not another city in the world that can boast of the combination of a policeman and an astronomer.

MAYOR OLNEY'S BOILERMAKERS GO OUT.

WILL NOT APPOINT A SUCCESSOR TO HOWARD AT PRESENT.

Mayor Warren Olney will not appoint any one at the present time to succeed Councilman John L. Howard, who is on his way to Europe. It was announced in a morning's paper that the Mayor would appoint George H. Collins to succeed Mr. Howard.

Mayor Olney made the following statement concerning the matter:

It is not true that I have made up my mind to appoint George H. Collins to the City Council to succeed Mr. Howard. I do not intend to make any appointments at the present time. If Mr. Howard returns to Oakland within a reasonable time, I will appoint him to the City Council. If, however, he does not return within a reasonable time, I will appoint his successor. At the present time, I cannot say whether or not I will appoint Mr. Collins to the position, but will say, however, that I have not yet thought of appointing anyone to succeed Mr. Howard.

SANTA FE COMPANY HAS A NEW PROBLEM TO SOLVE.

SAN BERNARDINO, May 9.—At 9:15 this morning all the boiler makers, blacksmiths and helpers employed in the Santa Fe shops had laid down their tools and walked out, the strike having been called in sympathy with the striking machinists who went out two weeks ago. In all about 150 men went out this morning.

There has been no trouble or disorder, either at the shops or elsewhere, the men simply laying down their tools and leaving the shops. As yet no non-union men have been brought in to take the places of those who struck today, although it is rumored that new men will be put to work tomorrow.

FIGHT LONG AND BITTER.

ST. PETERSBURG, May 9, 3:34 p. m.—The swift march of events at the theater of war—the virtual abandonment by the Russians of all their advanced positions along the Manchurian littoral—has created a deep impression among the people, and a feeling of apprehension which the authorities contend is unwarranted by a calm consideration of the situation.

While not attempting to minimize the importance of the advantages gained by the enemy in the occupation of the Liao Tung peninsula and the advance from the Yalu river, the general staff nevertheless declares that if it had not been for General Zassalitch's rash stand the retreat and concentration of General Kuropatkin's army upon its normal line of defense would have been regarded as a masterly piece of strategy. The equanimity of the government is shown by its free publication of all news telegrams from abroad, some being of a most sensational character.

BITTER AND LONG.

At the general staff the one dominant idea is that the developments of the last few days make it certain that the war will be bitter and long. There it is said that half a million men will have been required to hold Southern Manchuria. The real truth seems to be that General Kuropatkin has moved 40,000 men south of Harbin and is determined to pursue the plan which he mapped out at first—to allow the enemy to follow him back into the heart of Manchuria until strong enough to assume the offensive.

CANNOT MAKE GOOD.

The Associated Press is informed that while the Russian garrison is still at New Chwang the untenability of the position is fully realized. The Russian general staff here will be destroyed. The same thing applies to Hai Cheng, twenty-five miles southeast of New Chwang. The question of holding the Russian position at Liao Yang depends upon circumstances. The Russians hold the pass which commands the westerly approach, but it is realized that the position there will also be rendered untenable if the enemy succeeds in bringing up a superior force along the northern road to Mukden. An ultimate retreat to Harbin might possibly incur the danger of a Chinese uprising, which increases with the Japanese successes and must be taken into consideration. Should the news of the enemy's victories inflame the Chinese residents in Manchuria against Russia the situation might become grave. The possibility of active operations against Vladivostok also have to be reckoned with.

GUESS WORK.

The general staff indulges against a too pessimistic view of the situation, but it is pointed out that the Japanese must land another army before they can hope to make a strong advance, which will require time. In the meantime the strength of General Kuropatkin's army and his position will daily increase. The general staff repeats the words of the commander-in-chief—"patience, patience." They also insist that the full extent of the Russian losses on the Yalu river has been published.

"It is no guess work of our losses," said a member of the general staff. "Every man has been accounted for. Let the enemy publish theirs."

The New Alignment in European Politics

It is interesting to note how Emperor William has completely reversed the foreign policy of Bismarck, and at the same time radically altered the political conditions resulting from the Bismarckian policy. Internal complications caused the repeal of the Falk anti-clerical laws and the resumption of intimate friendly relations with the Papacy, but entirely different motives have prompted the cultivation of friendly relations with Russia. The growing German antagonism to Great Britain is undoubtedly at the bottom of that.

But as Germany gets closer to Russia and the Vatican, France gets closer to the Kingdom of Italy and England gets closer to France. While France is driving out the religious congregations, Germany is inviting the Jesuits to return. The Emperor of Germany goes again to Canossa to make his peace with the Supreme Pontiff and the President of France goes in state to visit the King of Italy, who is on ill terms with His Holiness. It is like a fancy dance in which partners change and all valtz.

After the fall of Paris and the crowning of William I to be Emperor of the reorganized German Empire, Bismarck found England, France and Russia mutually antagonistic. There was an hereditary antagonism between France and England that had existed since the days of the Plantagenets, and Russia had bitter feelings against both since the Crimean war. The Papacy was at odds with the Kingdom of Italy on account of the seizure of the temporal dominions of the church and the sequestration of the property appertaining to the civil government of the Papal States. Bismarck hated the church, which was closely allied to France. He desired to humble the successor of Hildebrand, and he also desired to keep France isolated. He was jealous of Russia, and looked forward to the dismemberment of Austria and the ultimate absorption of the German provinces of the dual monarchy by the newly-formed German Empire.

So he constructed the Triple Alliance between Germany, Austria and Italy and bade defiance to the Papa y. By this stroke he isolated both France and Russia and hoped he had eliminated British influence from European continental politics. However, when he decided to humble Russia after the Balkan war, he found that he had to take Great Britain into partnership. Disraeli, a far-seeing opportunist, was the central figure at the Berlin Conference and not the Iron Chancellor, and Great Britain emerged from the scene of Russia's humiliation with greater prestige than Germany.

It rankled in Bismarck's mind to have the splendid diplomatic coup he had planned to redound to the greater advantage of England than Germany and to the greater glory of another statesman, but he was forced to be content. Russia on the east as well as France on the west was crippled and unable to resist German influence in European politics. France, defeated and humiliated, was still further embittered by being virtually ignored at the Berlin Conference. This was the situation till new alignments began to develop and internal politics began to affect the external policy of the German Empire. Mutual hatred and a common cause of grievance against Germany and Great Britain caused France and Russia to forget their ancient differences and form an alliance to combat the combined German and British influence. Then the development of the German policy and commercial and colonial expansion created antagonism between Berlin and London. Next the rise of the Social Democratic party in Germany compelled the Kaiser to placate the unbroken phalanx of Catholics in the Reichstag. The success of his foreign policy depended upon his ability to carry out his military and domestic policy. He was forced to treat with the clericals on their own terms, and it finally led him to go again, like his predecessor William the Fowler, to the feet of the Roman Pontiff.

This had its immediate effect on France and Italy. As Germany grew closer to the Vatican the French Republic pulled away, and the King of Italy began to feel restive in the Triple Alliance. So France and Italy got together, and the former began a religious crusade against the religious orders. As Germany grew antagonistic to England, she began to cultivate Russia to detach her from the French alliance, and King Edward promptly began to woo La Belle France as a counter move. So France, England and Italy are completing a rapprochement which is distinctly antagonistic to Germany, Austria, Russia and the Papacy. The situation is somewhat analogous to the time when the great Richelieu threw the weight of France in the scale in favor of Sweden, Denmark, and the Protestant princes of Northern Germany against the empire and the church and thus prevented the triumph of the latter.

The Russo-French alliance still exists, but its force has been greatly weakened by recent events. Its necessity is disappearing and the reverses of Russia in the Far East are making it evident that Russian support is a broken reed for France to depend upon. So French sentiment cools toward the Czar and grows warmer for Perfidious Albion. Thus the international comedy is growing more mixed.

Admiral Skrydloff tarried too long in St. Petersburg receiving congratulations and boasting of what he would do when he got to Port Arthur. Now he can't go to Port Arthur. He is commander of a fleet that he cannot see and which is bottled up so tight that it cannot get out to sea itself.

It is something of a satire to find the word "copyrighted" at the bottom of the "official ode to the Louisiana Purchase Exposition." As the ode was paid for by the exposition managers, there is some curiosity to know who gets the usufruct of the copyright.

The editors of the rival papers in Grass Valley are engaged in the time-honored practice of proving each other to be liars and scoundrels. When will newspaper men learn that such exhibitions are silly and degrading! They lower the tone of journalism and detract from the dignity of the profession. The accusations so freely bandied back and forth are enormously discounted by the public or discredited altogether. Besides, they do no good and only make unpleasant reading for people who subscribe for newspapers to get the news and not diatribes and philippics, which do not concern or interest them.

The Japanese War Plan Developing

It is evident that Dalny and not Port Arthur is the immediate objective point of the Japanese. With Port Arthur completely invested and its harbor blocked, possession of Dalny gives the Japanese a splendid military and naval base with unrestricted rail communication to the north. As the Mikado's troops advance up the railroad to the north they will come in touch with Kuroki advancing from the east. Kuroki's hurried abandonment of the second Russian line of defense at Fens Huan Cheng renders it easy for Kuroki to strike the railway between Mukden and Nieu Chwang, rendering the fall of the latter place certain. Indeed, the Russians are now preparing to abandon it in a panic.

Once in possession of Dalny and Nieu Chwang, the Japanese will have the Russians cut off from the sea at every point south of Vladivostok. And that harbor may be expected to be put under immediate blockade. When that occurs the Russian campaign will be wholly dependant on the single line of railway stretching from Moscow to Harbin, and that line is now overworked and in danger of breaking down.

It is not likely that the Japanese will make any great sacrifices to capture Port Arthur and the fleet cooped up in its harbor. The place is not needed for present operations and its crippled ships and beleaguered garrison are powerless to do anything but await Japanese attack. The situation of Port Arthur is exactly the same as at Santiago when Shafter had it surrounded by land and Sampson commanded its approach by sea.

Each successive movement of the Japanese indicates a comprehensive plan that is being worked out to the letter, and no detail of which has thus far miscarried. The little brown men are moving with wonderful celerity and energy and apparently with complete knowledge of the country and the military conditions which confront them.

Unless they are checked in a decisive engagement they will be in Mukden in a fortnight and Manchuria will be practically theirs. It is reported from St. Petersburg that Mukden is short of provisions, while the hospitals are full of sick and wounded. The Russian commissary arrangements are woefully deficient, and large bodies of troops have been rushed to the front without adequate preparation for their maintenance in the field. The half-starved soldiers plunder the country of food and thus inspire fierce hatred on the part of the inhabitants. Hence the Japanese are welcomed and given information in regard to Russian movements that is invaluable. Virtually the Russian army is one of invasion put upon the defensive at a great disadvantage. The outlook is therefore not encouraging for Russian success.

Grand Chief Stone of the Order of Locomotive Engineers, delivered recently in Waco, Tex.: "Standing as a firm believer in union labor and the right of laboring men to organize, when an organization compels a man to join it against his will, it interferes with the personal liberty guaranteed him by the Constitution of the United States. The railway order's stand head and shoulder above all labor organizations, for they have the open shop. On almost every road in the country we work side by side with men who do not belong to our orders. No man is forced to join us. We try to show him how he would be benefited by belonging to us, and where his interests are, but we never say to him to join us or you cannot earn an honest living by working here. I do not believe any man ever made a good member in any organization who was forced to join it against his will, for the chances are that when opportunity offers, he will prove a traitor and betray you."

Hints for the Ladies.

Bacon with maple or sugar syrup and butter with any dish is an appetizing addition to the breakfast or lunch menu.

To have success with indoor potted plants it is an absolute necessity to keep them clean. At least once a week they should have a thorough sponging with lukewarm water to which a small quantity of ammonia is added. Wash stems and leaves carefully both on top and underneath. The more generous the water bath the better for the plant. Avoid having the windows open near a plant that has just been treated in this way, as plants are sensitive and cold air after a warm sponging would kill the most vigorous growth.

The newest bonbon box on the market is the bank box. This little savings box is just like the banks that some of the trust companies are giving out, the kind where the bank keeps the key and you keep the box and deposit your savings. With these candy boxes is given a small key and the deposited savings are chocolate bonbons.

Ruchings, frills and tiny ruffles are seen on all the dress costumes exhibited, while blouses for afternoon wear are fairly loaded with them.

Tan stockings, so much in vogue, are relieved by embroidered sprigs of pale pink, blue or black, some being dotted with the brightest of red silk dots.

Flowered scarfs of flowered liberty silk and chiffon are among the dainty things in the shops. They are for summer wear to throw about the head and shoulders on cool days and nights.

Large flower nets are among the showings for summer dancing gowns. One pretty one had big pink roses scattered all over it in a sort of pastel-like effect, while another has big blue flowers that might be anything, so indistinct are they.

The use of white lace and ruchings in the sleeves of street suits has given the stores a new idea and sleeve ruching in accordion-plated muslin edged with narrow lace or full ruffles of lace gathered on a narrow linen band are sold by the yard in the lace department. ## UNDER TWO FLAGS AT YE LIBERTY.

MISS EDITH CHAPMAN.

Much interest has been shown in the production of the play "Under Two Flags" by the Liberty Playhouse. The play is a comedy in two acts, written by the famous French dramatist, M. de Noilly. It is a story of a French girl who is captured by the English during the Napoleonic wars and is forced to live with an English family. The play is a very popular one and has been running for several weeks at the Liberty Playhouse.

A CALIFORNIAN IN SPECIAL MEETING OF TEAMSTERS.

HE DISCOMFITS HIS OPPONENTS IN A BIG CASE. ULE GOES INTO IMMEDIATE EFFECT.

Some California laborers at law are trying to break the will of James S. Wilder of St. Paul, Minnesota, who left a fortune of $5,000,000, on the ground that it is invalid under the law of Minnesota. The trial has been a hot one, but the report of the proceedings given in the St. Paul News indicates that the Californians are in a full match for the Minnesota attorneys. The following extract will show how the Californians kept their heads up:

Several prominent St. Paul attorneys were the object of a scornful and sarcastic attack at the hands of Attorney Treadwell, the gray-haired Californian counsel who represents the St. Paul counsel. Treadwell went after Attorney Howard, who has constantly alluded in a spiteful manner to the claimants as "unknown people" from California and "other States." Mr. Treadwell hails from California, and took exception to the language used by the St. Paul counsel.

"What if we are from California," he said, "that has nothing to do with the case. To your honor, we are all Americans. But I assure the learned counsel that any person in Minnesota can come to California and find the courts wide open. We have no great charities there, for there are no poor. When we need money we dig down in our pockets and give it to them, and do not wait until our death to perpetuate our names by creating charitable corporations."

The Californian attorney caused considerable merriment in court by making the remarkable statement that the opposing counsel had entirely ignored the points made by him, and of charging him with having pointed his head never made, and had, on the other hand, distinctly repudiated. He insisted that the St. Paul counsel had duped up on the supposition that the claimants would go on one tick when they took another, and that the local lawyers were at sea and did not know exactly what to argue on.

Mr. Treadwell's conclusion his morning argument by saying, "I am a Californian in daring to come down to this center of civilization from our out-of-the-way section, but we do not feel that we are presumptuous in quoting a decision of your own Supreme Court. A private trust for uncertain beneficiaries is void under the laws of Minnesota."

RUSSIA'S MINISTER CALLED BY DEATH. LONDON, May 9.—A dispatch to the Exchange Telegram Company, from St. Petersburg, announces the death there at 9 o'clock of M. Pleksee, late Minister of Finance.

M. Pleksee, who was born in 1852, was the son of a Russian general of German extraction. He entered the ministry of finance when 20 years of age and was credited with being a disciple of M. Witte, whom he succeeded as Minister of Finance in December last. M. Pleksee became seriously ill as the result of an injury to his spine in a carriage accident some time previously, and was obliged to undergo an operation.

Uncle Eb's Philosophy.

"LIFE EZ I KNOWS IT."

BY EBENEZER HEBERHIAH HOLDEN.

THE man who is a professor of athletes and tells others how to live a hundred years usually dies at thirty-five of heart failure. I never saw so sense in this physical culture, no-how. The farmer or the carpenter or the blacksmith lives to be ninety, uses his brain considerable, too, and don't think about his stomach or his muscles all the time. I know a hull lot of people that always think about their stomachs. It's them that tell me if I stop eating meat and good wholesome victuals and take up with some new fangled bran-mash satory food I'd live to be a hundred in the shade, and the next day I get an invitation from the family to come to the funeral. That party that told me to take care of my stomach died of catarrh of the stomach. That was all that saved his family, for he was teachin' the whole family to live on bran-mash and cereals, or whatever you call 'em, and the family were slowly wasting away. Men who try to get too strong, I notice, usually eat too much and die of heart failure. The man who works his brain and his body just enough to keep a balance, usually attends the funeral of the other fellow. There's common sense in all things. Now, when I don't know what's best to do, I jest sit down and read my book. This book is worth more than a whole library of novels—it's the "Common Sense Medical Adviser," and written by that Dr. Pierce, in Buffalo, N. Y., who founded the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute there. There ain't no nonsense about him. Say the doctor the other day and says the publisher ain't nothin' the matter with you, Ebenezer—notin' but old age, and if you go on livin' the same simple life you allas has, you'll live to spank the other fellow's great-grandchildren. You see, then I get bilious, I jest take a couple of "Pleasant Pills" of Doctor Pierce, they set me right and save me a whole lot of sickness. I don't get no microbes for why—kase I jest haven't any weak spots. My organs is all active—I keep 'em so. Once I had a lot of sickness; my stomach was all out of order, and so my blood got pined, I wrote to Dr. Pierce, and he told me not to eat so much fried pork and bacon and flapjacks, and then I took his vegetable extract and alternative, the "Golden Medical Discovery." That's the "finest tonic" for the stomach I ever heard of; it aint no cocktail, either, for it don't get a particle of alcohol in it, but is just pure from roots and herbs—sort of nature's tonic—and say—it just throws out all those poisons that accumulate in your system during the winter, and puts you straight, and makes you as lively as a cricket. All of Dr. Pierce's family remedies are good, 'cause they're made from

YOUTH MURDERS HIS LITTLE SISTER.

WINNIPEG, Man., May 9.—At Moose Lake John Schuster, aged 14, murdered his eight-year old sister by beating out her brains with a poker. The boy's father, it is alleged, buried the body with the hope of hiding the crime because the matter became known and the boy was arrested.

Eradicates it, positively and absolutely. This statement is based on the thousands of permanent cures these medicines have wrought. Testimonials of remarkable cures mailed on request. C. I. HOOD CO., Lowell, Mass.

It is commonly inherited. Few are entirely free from it. Pale, weak, purry children are afflicted with it in nine cases out of ten, and many adults suffer from it. Common indications are bunches in the neck, abscesses, cutaneous eruptions, inflamed eyelids, sore ears, rickets, catarrh, wasting, and general debility.
